

HYBRID EVENT

ENSURING FOOD AND NUTRITION SECURITY IN THE FACE OF THE CLIMATE CRISIS

Putting the Pact for the Future into action

Hybrid event on the occasion of the Summit of the Future on 19 September 2024

Around 828 million people worldwide suffer from hunger and 2.4 billion from food insecurity. In addition, around 3.3 to 3.6 billion people worldwide are affected by the effects of climate change. The climate and food crises are closely linked and have an impact on everyone's health.

In the "Pact for the Future", UN member states reaffirm their enduring commitment to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and its Sustainable Development Goals. Ending hunger and eliminating food and nutrition insecurity as well as enhancing ambitions to address the climate crisis are key actions in the pact. In this event, we would like to give representatives from civil society, governments, academia and other interested colleagues the opportunity to discuss the interlinkages between food and nutrition security, food systems and climate change, explore successful strategies for adaptation, and draw new conclusions for policy and integrated action across the climate, nutrition and health nexus. We will focus on the interplay between food security and the climate crisis and how the commitments from the Pact for the Future can be implemented. We will also discuss how those topics can be integrated in other upcoming multilateral processes.

VENRO (Association of German Development and Humanitarian Aid NGOs) is organising this hybrid event together with its partner platforms ABONG from Brazil, CCRDA from Ethiopia and VANI from India.
